

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY CONFERENCE

Loudon, T.

Trevor Loudon is an author, film-maker, blogger and public speaker from Christchurch, New Zealand. For more than 30 years, he has researched radical left, Marxist and terrorist movements and their covert influence on mainstream politics. He was vice president of ACT New Zealand, a classical liberal and right-libertarian political party from 2006 to 2008.

Loudon is the author of five self-published books on U.S. politics, and was featured in a 2016 documentary titled Enemies Within. He also founded the website KeyWiki.org, a wiki-format project, which contains articles on left-wing and centre-left political groups, as well as articles about non-famous individuals within communist parties, primarily in the United States, and lists the names of their members.

Trevor Loudon's thesis is that what is commonly regarded as mainstream political policy is in fact driven and guided by hidden subversive elements. Loudon believes that these forces must be exposed and countered, as America's continued role as a bastion of freedom is pivotal for the future of western civilization.

Loudon's research has given him unique insight into how extensively often minuscule communist parties have been able to manipulate, and even control policy formation in many Western countries – particularly the “main enemy:” the United States of America. Loudon's research shows that this is not just a historical problem, but is a very grave and looming threat which will not only impact America's national security but indeed her very survival.
